

Abridged Biography | Prof Phuti E Ngoepe

Professor Phuti E Ngoepe is a Senior Professor in Physics, holds the South African Research Chair in Computational Modelling of Materials at the University of Limpopo. He was Dean of the Faculty of Science and Acting Deputy Vice Chancellor at the University and a Founder Member of the Academy of Science of South Africa. He is a recipient of several honours including the Order of Mapungubwe awarded by the President of South Africa. He has published on computational modelling on energy storage, mineral processing and alloy development and gave invited lectures at local and international conferences, where he organized some; including chairing them and served on advisory committees. He has successfully supervised up to 80 MSc and PhD students to completion. Lastly he has served on several Boards mainly of Science Councils and participated in many science strategy committees and reviews of government institutions.
